Rob Kulisek

Rob Kulisek (b. Philadelphia, 1989) is an American photographer living and working in Berlin and New York. His work, which circulates in the worlds of fashion and fine art photography, involves establishing settings and environments in which his subjects can play out improvised scenarios that appear neither staged nor accidental. These simulated moments become the material for a voyeuristic catalogue.

This methodology has formed the backdrop for projects with commercial clients such as Adidas, Burberry, Gucci, Hästens, Nike, Telfar and Tesla Motors; images and campaigns that have appeared everywhere from the cover of Texte Zur Kunst to the pages of American Vogue.

Kulisek attended The Mountain School of Arts in 2015. The following year, he was nominated for FOAM Magazine's Paul Huff Award and his collaborative work with Dora Budor, WHEN THE SICK RULE THE WORLD, was included in the 9th Berlin Biennale curated by DIS.

Since 2016 Kulisek has also collaborated with German artist David Lieske on visual art and music under the name Kulisek / Lieske.

In 2017 he photographed artist, model and musician Eliza Douglas for the cover of 299 792 458 m/s, a fashion publication that he edits together with Lieske, and which is published by Westreich Wagner.

The images on the following pages are from the series "Pride (Rave)" and are the result of a single night of shooting during the pandemic for a well-known magazine. The shoot began indoors at the artist's Berlin studio before moving outside to a neighboring park.
