It is distressing to see your ideas have gone unlabelled, invalidated,
Dust.

The level of investment the proprietor allowed me was only ever understood in hindsight

When we can't think together anymore, We count. separately.

1, 2, 3, 4 . . .

7, 2, 2, 4, 5, 4

And it feels just about

Ok.

I count the teeth in my head, with my tongue

for a rhythm

I can't for-the-life-of-me maintain

Central, lateral

I'd awoken late last night, and had given birth to a Star
After several hours nursing it, the Star cast me into the woods.

The Star shone brilliantly, into neutron and obliterated all observers.
