A
Lukewarm
B

From room A to room L to room B,
Looking forward to the afterglow of the A to compare the B.

I prefer to wait knowing the time of passage
I prefer to wait in the sun

From room A to room B to room A,
The temperature cycle of the ambient air, my body, my breathing changes.

I prefer lukewarm air because hot air makes me sweat my hands
I prefer warm air because cold air makes me shiver

From room A to room B to room A,
Stack the minutes like bricks, move through the space with your hands

I prefer lukewarm water because cold water freezes my teeth
I prefer lukewarm water because hot water burns my tongue

Waiting room, Waiting room, waiting room

The wait is always lukewarm because time becomes action
The wait is always lukewarm because it will not decide your time.

From A to Lukewarm B,
