Performance: 28.08.2021, 17:00-19:00

Location: Vleeshal, Markt 1, Middelburg

A new performance by Juliette Blightman & Anthony Silvester, proposing the bedroom as an underground club.

Continuing the themes in the exhibition, and Blightman's interest in domestic confinement, in this performance the bedroom becomes a space where anything might be possible, an embodiment of the separation of life and art, as dreams and reality — a space where it is still possible to dance, especially after nightclubs being closed for so long, due to the pandemic. It is also a dream space where one can 'give up', not get out of bed, and refuse to participate in the world. Accompanied by a musical score, based on the manipulated bass sound from Berlin's club 'Berghain', and composed especially for this event by Silvester. The central themes of the performance bring the experience of the club to the confinements of domestic space, along with experimental narrative, subculture, gender and identity.

Performance starts at 17:00, There is no need to make a reservation and entrance is free.
