World Gallery World is a digital painting archive with 3300 instagram posts, each one corresponding to a different artist from all over the world. With this archive, a wide range of references is opened, which with its character of costumbrismo, can glimpse the wide spectrum of society, its spirit, its vision of events and its forms.

These works are based on this archive: a daily exercise of searching, selecting, restructuring and combining images, giving them another scope and meaning. Building the paintings through successive layers of reference, each one becomes a compact and heavy block. Together on the wall, the 6 small stones, with heat and pressure, form a large one.

Blame Plain

W. Georgia Gardner Gray

Like a nonsense combination of verb and adjective, materials come together to create pieces of furniture that could nearly serve human beings. Materials include found sculpted forms, inorganic metal scrap, and organic left-overs: the full spectrum. The assemblages are gratuitously brutal and dumbly intuitive. These familiar furnitures become part of a super narrative, hovering in a space of specific and platonic representation.
