Press Release

The most Cosmopolitan conveyance between the Capital of Europe and the City of Lights is called Thalys. Wayfaring Affectionados, Conversationalists, and Vagabonds; as early as 1996 and at 320 Km/Hour, Thalys is officially the Voie De Vivre to the Champs-Elysees. Whether its multilingual coach attendants, a free wifi connection, sockets in each carriage, and Excuse My Franglais; a vegan tidbit, depending on the time of day, and your privileges, they are all presented with a smile onboard of the sirocco savoureux.

Between January 27th and February 1st, some travelers on board of Thalys between Brussels and Paris might have experienced 'Concertissimo Annullato'; an exhibition project advocating the potentus of drama, mannerism and identity in Gastronomy.
