SCULPTURE MILWAUKEE 2022-23 ARTIST ROSTER CURATED BY UGO RONDINONE ANNOUNCED

[MILWAUKEE, WI, July 5, 2022—] Guest Curator Ugo Rondinone has announced today the full roster of exhibiting artists for Sculpture Milwaukee’s sixth edition, Nature Doesn’t Know About Us. The exhibition is slated to go on view July 30th, 2022 and run through October 31st, 2023.

Of the exhibition Ugo Rondinone says:

“There is a world alongside ours—boundless, unhurried, interconnected, resourceful, lavishly inventive, and we are only temporarily in it. Nature Doesn’t Know About Us celebrates the disparate elements of the Earth, while exploring the human connection to nature. The exhibition brings together the works of eighteen artists who combine skeptical clarity and at times humor-tinged desire to locate the intersection of spiritual and physical presence in our daily life. The natural world serves as a doorway into a highly rarefied metaphysical realm where the sea of consciousness surges against the tangible world. A world where all is in flux as distinctions between self and soul, body and spirit, past and present, mortification and bliss, confinement and escape all blur and waver.”

ARTISTS

UGO RONDINONE

Ugo Rondinone (Swiss, b. 1964) is a New York-based artist recognised as one of the great voices of his generation. Rondinone is an artist who proposes trenchant reflections on nature and the human condition, while establishing a formal and organic vocabulary in which he fuses a variety of sculptural and pictorial traditions.
