Foxy Productions presents SOWA, David Noonan's first New York solo show. SOWA is an installation of prints, sculpture, and film.

SOWA brings a heightened surreality to Noonan's explorations of horror genre aesthetics. In Sowa: Wallpaper Tile (2002-2003), a gathering of owls appears clone-like on wallpapered prints, creating a baroque and menacing ante-chamber. Owl (2002) is a cast sculpture that could be a film prop, or an otherworldly relic. Sowa (2003), a 16mm film made collaboratively with Simon Trevaks, features a young woman who is slowly drawn into a forest by the magnetic presence of an unidentified force. Drifting in and out of a dream-state, she never reaches her destination.

David Noonan has recently exhibited at PS1 (New York) and Uplands Gallery (Melbourne), Noonan and Trevaks have shown together at Henry Urbach Architecture (New York), Roslyn Oxley9 Gallery (Sydney), Museo Nacional Centro de Arte Reina Sofia (Madrid), and the 7th Istanbul Biennale.

David Noonan has received international awards, including an Australia Council Grant - PS1 Studio New York (2001), and a Moet & Chandon Passing Time Commission (1999). His work is in the permanent collection of the National Gallery of Victoria, Australia, and in private collections in Australia, Britain and the USA. He has been featured in Artext, Art in America, Art & Australia, Flash Art, Frieze, and Time Out New York.
