“I like watching people do. Like moving from A to B or lifting a chair. There are so many different ways of loving or lifting. I don’t like small spaces. I like watching other people take pleasure in confinement. I don’t like telling people what to do but some people want to be told.”

Holders is a new play written and directed by Erika Landström. Featuring Tess Sahara Çetin, Aislinn McNamara, Tavish Miller, and Kayla Weisdorf. Set and costume in collaboration with Anina Troesch. Music by Linda Spjut.

Erika Landström is an artist living and working between New York and Sweden. She is a recent graduate of the Whitney Independent Study Program. Her work has been exhibited at The Elizabeth Foundation for the Arts (New York), Schiefe Zähne (Berlin), Liszt (Berlin), Galleria Federico Vavassori (Milan), the Museum of Modern Art (Frankfurt), Vilma Gold (London), and Moderna Museet (Stockholm). She has performed with Im/Pure Fiction at Kestnergesellschaft (Hanover), the Montreal Biennial (Montreal), and Portikus (Frankfurt).

With support by The Swedish Arts Grants Committee.
