Vītatio, as a linguistic attribute, holds both meanings of invitation and avoidance. Joined by interventions in context, tonality and texture to untether an object's known physicality, the artists Zarouhie Abdalian, Harmony Hammond, Reggie Burrows Hodges, Peter Hujar, K.R.M. Mooney, Cameron Rowland, Danh Vo, Bri Williams, Kiyon Williams, and Fred Wilson span generations and working methods. The works take up personal and historical memories as co-authors. Always implicated in formations of knowledge and power that produce reward, recognition, or status as some stories accumulate and arise over others, the works in the exhibition channel a quiet subversion, attributing experience beyond what can appear, be named or extended to another.
