for can

July 20 - August 25, 2024

These prints depict my uncle and his colleague posing in a temporary shelter. I purposely never asked them where and when it exactly was. These images could have been taken anywhere between the Baltics and Kamchatka as it's clear that the architecture and accoutrements of these rooms follow GOST standards - the regulated technical specifications established in the Soviet period. I've been thinking about the room of Can through those spaces and through Chika (the cat) who is not asleep, but just closed her eyes to show admiration.
