IN

Material activates by transforming and becoming visible outside of its material past. Ideas become material by transforming physical matter. Friend's scraps of paper transform into pulp, pulp transforms into abstraction, abstracting while holding my M/others ¹in mind.

This exhibition is a series of lines: extruded, pulped, bleeding, printed and mass-produced and transformed circularly. Going into the lines, a case is being made for the into, the inner, the in - between, IN is an argument for reading into the words, in - between the lines, into the language and to get IN to the fibers between my fingers typing this and your fingers holding it now.
