Julien Auregan & Julien Meert

Today, the term "collage" extends beyond visual arts to encompass any linguistic composition that incorporates words, phrases, or sections from outside source material in a juxtaposed manner. This technique continues to inspire and challenge artists, inviting viewers to engage with the interplay of materials and meanings.

In this dual exhibition, we delve into the innovative practices of two contemporary artists, Julien Auregan and Julien Meert, whose distinctive approaches to painting challenge traditional compositional norms and invite exploration into the complexities of abstraction, form, identity, and perception.
