Debut solo exhibition by Savannah Marie Harris across two sites

Harlesden High Street presents Savannah Marie Harris's debut - Looking Into The Shimmer. This solo exhibition delves into being without an agenda, the intention is to consider what does the antagonist truly remember.

Looking into the Shimmer will be on display at 96 Chalton Street, NW1 1HJ from 4th - 21st of February 2023. It will immediately continue its presence at Harlesden High Street, NW10 4NJ from the 24th of February 2023 - 18 March 2023.

Savannah Marie captures a space of complexity where the audience rifles through their own remembrance as they take the journey through the carved and layered painting before them.

There is a conversational harmony between Savannah Marie and the canvas as oil is applied and eroded in the same breath.

Indulging in an intuitive art practice leads the current Royal College of Art (2021-2023) attendee, into paths of the familiar and nostalgic, with only the fluid intentions to feel. Memory is dared to annihilate the decision making based on future brush strokes, instead Savannah Marie audaciously invites her mind to places she doesn't recollect yet has emotionally and spiritually been before.
