

Some people think the internet has been cursed

Some people would like to see the worst case scenario take place in order to retroactively justify their feelings

There is a temptation to experience short-term relief in indulging in panic. Each time we give in, we set off a set of relays on the web that makes the hyperstition more likely to become a reality

Our day to day use of binary machines changes our brains neuroplastically, like a muscle

There are many layers of meaning on the web

A meta-meaning

An affective meaning
