Find Five Flaws

16.11 - 15.12.2024

The artists share a studio in London and originally conceived this exhibition as a mirroring of each of their works. Common themes appear in each artist's past work; trolls, babies, silhouettes, houses. The intervention in the space would enhance this mirroring effect. The title Find Five Flaws comes from the instructions for spot the difference games. During the making of the works the concept became more open ended and other themes such as milk, feeding, influence, magic and violence were also part of the conversations in the shared studio.

They've both made artworks with angels that didn't make it into the show. Angels could be seen as representing ideal innocence and selflessness however they could also be seen as gateway beings to disembodiment and something terrifying and sublime.

When sharing a studio and making an art show you have to consider the management of shared space, your bodies, belongings and boundaries. it raises anxieties about sharing, intrusion, comparisons and similarities.
