

seeing a plan from a bird's-eye view and then, three acts in three rooms the first configurations of colors, fields, temperatures with an inherent system: expanding, shrinking, turning blurry and we are placed in them in the second the head turns upwards, a new act commences distortion of the self despite the right eye-height and we move with and beside it at last we are reminded that there's a way the idea of a purchase but also a lack; a solution or catastrophe beams and shadows send out a message while we might forget the walls
