

Annie Andersson (b. 2000) lives and works in Stockholm and is currently pursuing an MFA at Konstfack (2024–2026). Andersson's presentation for the showroom explores the constraints between a functional and dysfunctional body. Referencing the transformation of red blood cells into "ghosts" under hypotonic conditions, her work considers states of expansion, dilution, and rupture, where bodies and materials become unstable and on the verge of disappearance. Working with 3D software, video, sound, and installation, she constructs an environment where form appears stretched, permeable, and dispersed. Salt, as both a regulating agent and a conduit for communication within the body, functions here as a conceptual anchor, linking material processes with questions of perception, tension, and dissolution.
