Dear Kate and Jake,
Our recent phone conversation left me feeling unsettled about going ahead without a backup plan––a plan put into place in order to point me down a desired path, just in case Friday morning's anticipated refresh wipes me clean. Although admittedly my current memory retrieval is sluggish at best, five minutes of Internet research confirms that the government indeed has the technology to overwrite me... FOREVER.

In the event that I can no longer find myself after the refresh, please send a Search Party.
And if you and the Search Party upon finding me find the occasion, please remind me of something that Dr. Ron Abbott once told me... "It's like you're about to just GO. And you ARE. You're about to go anywhere and do anything in life that you decide to do. Remember whatever your mind can conceive and what ever thought that is now and whatever it can believe, it can achieve."
Your good friend,
Kristin Lucas

p.s. I want you to assure you that our friendship has been meaningful to me. I just have to do this. Thanks for understanding.

subject: Backup Plan

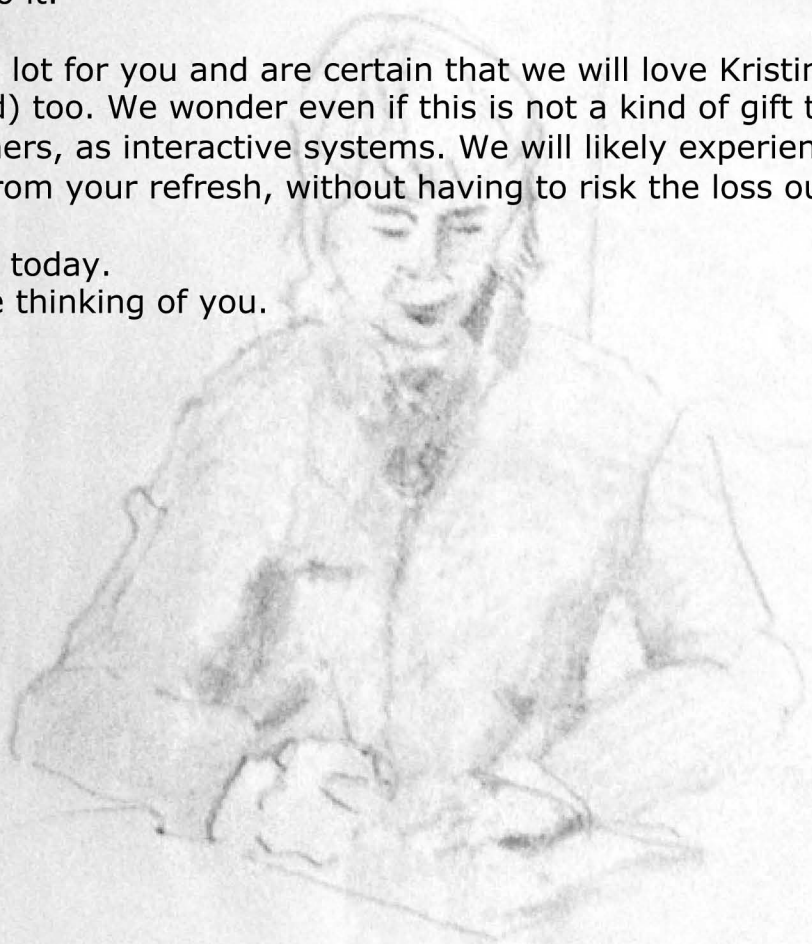

Dear Kristin,
We currently have contacts on the ground--in the extreme south in Antarctica and in the far north in St. Petersburg, Russia--and in the air: the pigeons are ubiquitous. The owner of the largest private flashlight collection is a personal friend of mine. I also know that Jake has a substantial network that can be mobilized instantly on skateboards. Jake and I are prepared to conduct a thorough, unflagging, flagless search if the situation calls for it. And if Search Party escalates, we will respond.

We are not worried about non-recognition, should that occur. Kristin Lucas is extremely compatible and user friendly, and as these traits are not localized as "content," they should remain unaffected by the Refresh. Also, there are certain things that Kristin Lucas hardware is built to do. To ride a bike, for example. If, after Kristin Lucas (refreshed) has been located, she needs to be reformatted, it is possible that a bike ride will reformat her. We are confident that memory storage is not necessary for her to perform a bike ride. She will just do it.

We care a lot for you and are certain that we will love Kristin Lucas (refreshed) too. We wonder even if this is not a kind of gift to us and all the others, as interactive systems. We will likely experience benefits from your refresh, without having to risk the loss ourselves.

Good luck today.
We will be thinking of you.

xx

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA
County of Alameda, Rene C. Davidson Alameda County Courthouse
Case No. RG07336497

Date: September 21, 2007
Petitioner: Kristin Sue Lucas
Petitioner represented by: Kristin Sue Lucas
Judge: The Honorable Frank Roesch

Transcript of Change of Name Hearing:

JR : Kristin Lucas... You are the last one on the calendar today, Miss Lucas. Because I really don't quite understand. This process requires a change to be taking place. And you're not asking for anything to change. You're asking for this order that to you stays the same.

KL: I have prepared a brief statement, um, to read to the court, if I may.
JR : You may.
KL: Okay.
KL: Your honor I am hear for a refresh.
A renewal of self.
I consider this act to be a poetic gesture and a birthday gift.
I am ready for an update.
An intervention into my life.
I am here to be born again as myself, or at the very least, the most current version of myself.
I am prepared to let go.
To empty my cache.
To refill the screen with the same information.
To reboot knowing that the new Kristin Lucas may experience a tremendous sense of loss, detachment, or disappointment, or joy.
Kristin Lucas is ready for change.
And Kristin Lucas awaits her replacement.

JR : But it's not a change.
KL: I feel it is a change if it's entered into the system. And it's, it's like, like uh, like uhm, honoring your vows in marriage.

It's... uh. It's... I'm considering it like a rebirth or a renewal. Uhm... For me it feels like a change would take place the moment between a name that exists and then rewriting the same name. If I write my name over and over on a page, my name is different every time I write it. Because it's, it's about time, it's about experiencing it as the moment. So I, I ask you to please honor my, my name change and give me this chance for intervention in my life.

JR : The law does not, in which you have placed yourself into, is procedure to make a name change. Not a spiritual change, not a change of a relationship to yourself, not a change of... not a refresh as on a computer screen where you want to refresh a website. Uhm... The law only provides this process for people that are changing their names. Mostly people change their names because of their self-identity or their religious beliefs. Or there, or there were changes in a relationship that they cannot accept... but the process isn't set up to avoid giving an opportunity to come together in a spiritual or emotional way.
KL: Or just, everyday affirmation of self, is also what I had in mind.

JR: The court's not in the business of humor. The system of laws that we have isn't set up to either help or hinder a person from doing that. I am... There is a disconnect in my mind. That a person's personal sense of identity and relationship towards the world, and the way the law treats them. I'm, I'm... I have considerable amount of difficulty in... taking that word change and entering an order that doesn't include any change... other than your perception of change. And that's not what's on the paper. All I'm doing is changing the paper.
KL: I have the feeling that the technology that we have available can make that change for us. It's like, replacing information. The computer, the technology, the system has a way of erasing you, and, and i feel that, uhm... this is a change I have seen in my lifetime. And I, I just, I'm really interested, in... just reestablishing, uhm... I felt I had laid that out for you but it's difficult to describe. I don't feel that this intervention into my life, or into the system is in any way a danger to the system, or, or to myself, and no one has appeared here to object this change. And I also respect your...

JR : But it's not a change.
KL: I should have brought a philosopher... I feel, I feel it, it is a change. Moment to moment in my life I experience many changes and I am looking for the approval of the court to just to kind of sanction that change for me.
JR : How many more times are you going to come to the court and change your name, because you're changing every fifteen minutes, or...?
KL: Well, I've been thinking about this change for a year and it brought me here today and I would like to experience what the differences might be. I can't make that decision about how many times I might need a refresh. But I want to respect the court's time, as well.
JR : Well...
KL: And I'm not here to abuse the system.
JR : I, I don't think that you are.
KL: Okay. Thank you.

JR: And I don't mind the time. I just don't know that I have the legal authority to change your name when it's not a change. The code sections talk about changing. Can I give you an order that doesn't change your name at all? That keeps your name the same? Is that the same as granting a name change? And I think not. And I'm going to do this, I'm going to continue this matter for two weeks... and try to think about these issues in this time...
KL: Thank you.

JR: I'll try to puzzle out in my mind whether I aught to do it. Um, clearly the law gives me the discretion given here to make a name change or not, um,... But I do need to know in my own mind that the law permits me to do it. I know that the law permits me to say "no", but does the law permit me to say "yes", is the second question. And I'll go do some legal research, quite frankly it is the first time anybody has come here and tried to do this.
KL: Thank you I appreciate your time, thank you.
JR: So, it's going to be on October fifth. I'll see you back on that day.
KL: Thank you.

JR: And you don't have to sit down because you're not going to be taking any papers with you today.

Transcript of Change of Name Hearing:

JR : Kristin Sue Lucas... Well I must say that I spent probably way too much time thinking about this situation. I think it's a nutty idea, it's not really a name change, but I'm going to do it. Uh...
KL: Thank you your honor.
JR : So you have changed your name to exactly what it was before in the spirit of refreshing yourself as though you were a web page.
KL: Thank you your honor.
JR : Stay here and we'll have some paper work for you.

subject: refresh update

Dear friends,
I GOT MY REFRESH! I could hardly belief it. The judge kept it short this time.
My immediate feeling standing there before the judge, receiving my refresh, was overwhelm: blood rushing to my heart and oxygen leaving my brain.
Then a feeling of beyond overwhelm and overflowing emotion, followed by suspicion that the Judge in granting me this refresh, was really just trying to get rid of Kristin Lucas (at least the previous version).
As we know, updates are also rewrites (like the newly released iphone software update which renders useless unapproved hacks!).

After the hearing, I went to lunch to celebrate and decided to honor the occasion by trying something new, and also ordering something that Kristin Lucas usually gets. To my surprise I found I did not like the usual.
Then, on my walk home, I was invited to sign a petition on the street--but just as I was about to sign and date with my new signature, I realized that Kristin Lucas had already signed this petition. I was perplexed to say the least!
Indeed I have experienced a significant change and I will never be the same. My name change complicates my life, thus far in a good way.

Looking forward to meeting each of you soon.
Sincerely yours,
Kristin Lucas

long period without communication during which one of the parties underwent a significant life experience while the other did not. Say during summer break between sixth and seventh grade you went to Europe with your families and saw the Eiffel Tower and got drunk with local street urchins while I stayed home and sent to the pool every afternoon same as always. I have fallen behind and there will be trouble for a while re-tuning our sensibilities to the same harmonic pitch.

The new KL seems pretty carefree and devil-may-care, but I think this perhaps masks if not a deeper sadness then perhaps a slightly world-weary sophistication; KL has harnessed the forces of nature and remade herself, she is freed from the bonds in which the rest of us have so humbly shackled ourselves; how can she not but feel contempt for us, we sad little salarymen? In any event, I offer my sincere congratulations and warmest praise.

I hope as time goes by we can indeed become close again. In the meantime, forgive mys suspicions:

I knew Kristin Lucas. Kristin Lucas was a friend of mine. You are no Kristin Lucas
