

a day like any other

18.04 – 16.05.25

exhibition by Tim Kummer

+ performance by Cécile Baumgartner Vizkelety

EN The exhibition a day like any other takes shape as a material translation of Tim Kummer's thoughts and values.

Nurtured by reflections developed during his residency/schooling at LungA School in Iceland, the exhibition becomes for him a moment of sharing and celebration—of conviviality and kindness. Aware of the conventions of the art world and contemporary society, Tim Kummer subtly diverts traditional exhibition codes in favor of collective, accessible, and open formats, such as karaoke. Collective, without hierarchy or selection, rather fun and open to everyone performing, karaoke is seen by the artist as an inclusive and unifying format. Here, it becomes both a committed gesture and a tool for the appropriation of a text—a poem—through free interpretation or reinvention. Each person offers their own version and shares something personal.

A photo, a party, broom holders—through these proposals, the artist places particular importance on the everyday, on transitional spaces, on ordinary objects. He highlights the details of life: in-between moments, functional objects, things at the border between utility and uselessness.

The exhibition a day like any other is imagined as a universal, shared space where everyone can project themselves. A common ground for trying out new roles, stepping into someone else's shoes, and fostering collective energy.

Many thanks to Martina Henzi for the help.
